KNOW THE ANSWER'

LEADING LABOUR PARTY POLITICIANS HAVE OPENLY ADMITTED THAT THEY HAVE NO ANSWER TO GROWING UNEMPLOYMENT. LABOUR PRIME MINISTER JAMES CALLAGHAN TOLD A MEETING OF LABOUR MPs HELD ON THE 1st OF FEBRUARY: "WE NEED MORE JOBS, BUT I DON'T KNOW THE ANSWER."

Youth hard hit

Mrs. Shirley Williams, Labour Secretary of State for Education and Science, told a youth conference held at Wembley on the same day: "We are seeing the increase of unemployment throughout the industrial world, and it is a problem for which we still have no real answer."

Mr. Albert Booth, Labour Employment Secretary, admitted in a radio interview shortly afterwards that unemployment could rise to two million this year.

The total unemployed for mid-January was 1,448,193 which was 6.1% of the working population. This represented a rise of 77,193 on the previous month and was the highest January figure since 1948.

Labour has tinkered with so-called 'job creation schemes', but these have not touched the underlying causes of our economic difficulties.

OUR PLAN

TO REBUILD

BRITAIN

- We must protect the jobs of British workers from foreign cheap labour competition and isolate ourselves from the vagaries of world prices and foreign interference, by a policy of economic nationalism.

We must free ourselves from entrapment with our trade rivals in the European Common Market and rebuild our links with the British settled countries such as Australia, Canada and New Zealand, which are linked to us by common ancestry, language and culture and which have complementary economies to our own.

We must aim at the greatest possible self-sufficiency in food production through the expansion of British agriculture, and we should halt the importation of foreign manufactured goods which we can

Youth hard hit

Apprentice training: vital to Britain's future

A REPORT carried out by the North Tyneside Community Development Project for the local trades council showed that 46.8% of the unemployed in North Tyneside last July were under 25.

"The crisis facing the young worker cannot be underestimated," says the report.

North Tyneside is a shipbuilding and heavy engineering area, and Britain's shipbuilding order book is now at its lowest level for 10 years.

The pattern is repeated in all industries throughout Britain, and with regard to youth one of the most harmful results is in the reduction of apprenticeships.

According to a report just published by a joint committee of the Manpower Services Commission and the National Economic Development Office we are already suffering from a shortage of skilled craftsmen. The number of people completing apprentice training fell from an average of 15,000 a year in the early 1970s to an expected average of under 10,500 in the next few years.

Youth unemployment can only aggravate this situation — a situation that is already having a catastrophic effect.

A Birmingham MP recently claimed that British Leyland is exporting £1 million worth of work to Japan and Germany because of a shortage of skilled toolmakers in Britain.

unemployment throughout the industrial world, and it is a problem for which we still have no real answer."

Mr. Albert Booth, Labour Employment Secretary, admitted in a radio interview shortly afterwards that unemployment could rise to two million this year.

The total unemployed for mid-January was 1,448,193 which was 6.1% of the working population. This represented a rise of 77,193 on the previous month and was the highest January figure since 1948.

RADICAL ALTERNATIVE

The Tory press, meanwhile, have been running a campaign against 'Social Security spongers' which hides the fact that there are many more unemployed than there are jobs available. In October of last year, for example, the last month for which figures are available, there were 1,253,000 unemployed (when seasonally adjusted) but only 124,000 vacancies.

Inflation is also rising. The Retail Price Index, which measures the cost of living, rose by 15.1%, but basic wage rates increased by only 11.7%. Not only is our money constantly being devalued, but our actual living standards are continuously going down.

Wholesale prices in January rose by 3.2% bringing the rise in wholesale prices over the previous twelve months to 19.6%.

The old gang Tory and Labour parties have no answers to Britain's problems. As the crisis deepens, the unemployed will look more and more for a radical alternative to the existing economic system. We must ensure that they are brought into the Nationalist movement and not drawn to the false and oppressive philosophy of Communism.

TO REBUILD BRITAIN

- We must protect the jobs of British workers from foreign cheap labour competition and isolate ourselves from the vagaries of world prices and foreign interference, by a policy of economic nationalism.

We must free ourselves from entrapment with our trade rivals in the European Common Market and rebuild our links with the British settled countries such as Australia, Canada and New Zealand, which are linked to us by common ancestry, language and culture and which have complementary economies to our own.

We must aim at the greatest possible self-sufficiency in food production through the expansion of British agriculture, and we should halt the importation of foreign manufactured goods which we can produce ourselves.

By producing for a protected home market, we can wipe out the balance of payments problem and eliminate the need to get further and further in debt to foreign bankers.

- British industry, commerce and agriculture must come under exclusively British ownership and control. Further foreign takeovers must be stopped, and concerns already owned by foreign interests must be gradually transferred into British hands.

Monopolies must be broken up to promote healthy competition and restore a free market economy. At present the international monopolies command such a vast concentration of power that the transfer of their reserves from one currency to another is able to have a substantial effect on the fluctuation of the pound.

By breaking up and taking over the multinational corporations, we will also be striking a blow for our national freedom and for the realisation of the democratic aspirations which are at present subservient to the international Money Power.

We must stop the wrangling in industry by giving ordinary workers a real say and interest through the introduction of profit sharing and workers' co-partnership.

- We must remove the financial causes of unemployment and inflation through the introduction of a stable commodity-based money supply, whereby credit is created by the State, is directly related to the real production of goods and services, and is spent — not lent — into circulation, debt and interest free.

- We must ensure British jobs for British workers by getting rid of foreign labour competition here at home. The continuing flow of foreign labour into Britain holds back automation.

We must have a crash programme of re-equipping, re-tooling and generally automating the economy, re-directing currently unemployed and surplus labour into new industries to make the manufactured goods currently imported.

British investment overseas must be curtailed. Money raised from the sale of overseas investments can be used to buy-up foreign owned concerns in Britain and to expand British industry.

Britain First: buy it, read it, sell it!

As can be seen from readers' letters some people want the style and content of Britain First to be changed, but they all have different and often conflicting ideas!

We have done our best to weigh up the balance of opinion, and have come to the conclusion that Britain First should have:

- shorter punchier articles,
- and • offer more constructive solutions.

In order to help build Britain First's circulation we will follow these guidelines, but we need the help of our readers and supporters.

While the content and style of Britain First is of the utmost importance in itself, almost all the evidence would seem to suggest that at our present stage of development the effort made by NP Branches to sell Britain First is, within reason, more important as regards its actual circulation.

The difference between the sales obtained by one NP Branch and another, is far greater than the difference between the sales of one issue as against another, whether issues have long or short articles or concentrate on race or other subjects.

So remember, it's up to you as well as us!

HOW THEY PLAN TO BRAINWASH KIDS

COLLINS, the book publishers, are offering prizes for "Children's Books that reflect multi-ethnic Britain". The winning entries will be published simultaneously in Collins hardback and Lions paperback books. According to the publishers' handout "Throughout the campaign, Collins will be working very closely with The National Committee on Racism in Children's Books". It is cranks from this organisation who spend their time trying to get Biggles books banned from libraries because of their "racist" content.

The intention is obviously to try and brainwash our kids into believing the multi-racial society is here to stay, and undermine their pride in their country. To make sure the "right" kind of books are foisted on British children, the judges for the competition include Dorothy Kuya, a Community Relations Officer and the head of The National Committee on Racism in Children's Books; Dilip Hiro, author of Black British, White British; and Buchi Emechata, described as the "author of several works of fiction".

Meanwhile, the Royal Court Theatre is holding a series of theatre-workshops for 300 school-kids "devoted to understanding homosexuals and Blacks". The homosexual director of the theatre is hiring a bunch of queers called 'Gay Sweatshop' and an all-Black group, 'Temba', to help out. White heterosexuals, it seems, are going out of fashion.

It is reported that "teenage schoolboys and girls will be encouraged to act parts in little cameos depicting the problems of homosexuals and Blacks". So, if after all this your kid comes home with an identity crisis, don't be surprised.

There is no cause for despondency, however. It is rumoured in informed circles that Nationalists are to open an 'Attila the Hun Workshop' devoted to the problems of White heterosexuals living in Brixton.

CRIME AND PERSONALITY

Dear Editor,

Your correspondent Dave McCalden (Britain First No. 45) argues that when the Establishment decides to fine or lock up NP members merely for stepping outside the petty framework of their so-called 'laws' in the higher cause of the survival of the White Race and the British Nation, it does not make them 'criminals' (any more than our soldiers in the last war were 'murderers' simply because they shot the enemy). This is, of course, true. However, it is quite irrelevant to the question of whether real 'criminal behaviour' is inherited.

Professor Eysenck and other scientists, when they claim that "criminality" is determined largely by genetic factors, are talking about patterns of behaviour, such as irrational violence, habitual thieving, and general lack of 'conscience' about selfish and anti-social actions; whether such behaviour patterns contravene the laws in force at the time or are classified as 'criminal' is not pertinent to this question.

If Eysenck is right on this controversy — and almost certainly he is correct at least in so far that the violent and anti-social activities of many young Blacks are very

Dear Editor,

The new format of Britain First does not seem as popular as the red, white and blue version. I actually prefer the new one but I am in a minority.

We appeal to NP Branches not to do this, lest we fall victim to a vicious spiral of increasing cost and falling circulation.

There is a very good reason why Branches shouldn't have to do this. If they were doing their job properly they would not only be recovering their outlay, but making a profit for Branch funds.

While the effort being made by some Branches is truly magnificent, the effort being made by some others is frankly pathetic.

Lewisham and Southwark Branch which contains only a fraction of the national membership of the NP nevertheless accounts for over 30% of the paper's total circulation.

Some individual sellers in Lewisham and Southwark are responsible for selling four times as many copies as are taken by whole Branches elsewhere.

One supporter in the Southwark area, who is not even a Party member, takes 100 copies of Britain First each month and goes from door to door until they are all sold.

Units with a small membership are not expected to take a large amount, but in areas with a large membership there can be no excuse for failing to take large amounts, except apathy and laziness.

To gain a better idea of what a Branch can and ought to achieve we should bear in mind that while

Dear Editor,

I would like to say how much I agree with Mr. Gue's letter in Britain First No. 45. The paper is becoming more and more obsessed with the racial question and Commie bashing.

A number of purchasers have commented on the change in colour at the top of the paper from red to a purply colour, and the fact that the Union Flag commonly known as the Union Jack is now missing from the paper. I would be glad of your comments, since our readers do not appreciate the change.

I personally object to your editorial on the Queen's Silver Jubilee. One cannot blame Her Majesty for the condition of our Nation today, and I certainly did not consider the Christmas message was promoting the Labour Party's anti-racialism campaign. Her Majesty rules over nations of all colours, races and religions and has to consider them all not just one section.

Your second point really hits the nail on the head. I like to think that Britain First has an important rôle in the development of the NP, and I think that more effort ought to be put into promoting it.

When one student member can buy 1,000 copies of Britain First each month out of his own money, and when Branches who make the effort can achieve a one-in-four success rate with door to door selling, we can see no reason why Britain First should not achieve an immediate circulation of 50,000.

I regret that Britain First is subject to sudden price increases, but this is forced upon us by constantly rising production costs.

These costs could be largely offset if National Party Branches were doing more to increase Britain First's circulation. As it is, some Branches have responded to price increases by reducing their orders, thereby making another price increase inevitable.

We strive to produce Britain First to a high standard. It is quite an effort to research, write, paste-up, package and run the accounts of a monthly publication with only one full-time staff member. This effort is wasted if Branches do not organise the practical groundwork of getting Britain First out to the public through street sales, factory sales, door to door sales, and through newsagents.

It is no use sitting at home pontificating about the World situation, or expecting all political work to be 'fun'. There is no magic formula other than hard work, guts and sacrifice. Tomorrow belongs to whoever seizes the time. If we leave it to the Reds and other internationalists, we'll have no country left to fight for.

GOVERNMENT PREPARES TO COOK THE BOOKS

ONE of the most interesting features of the Government's recent White Paper on Public Expenditure was the use of a "new definition" of debt interest. This "new definition" excludes interest that is paid for by the community through prices, rents, interest receipts etc. All that is left is the debt interest we finance from taxes and further borrowing.

Put in simple terms, this means that by using this "new definition" of debt interest, the Government only states a part of the interest charges that the public sector has to pay. They tell us about the interest charges we the public have to pay for out of taxes, but not the interest charges we pay for with high council rents.

Under the usual definition of debt interest, the public sector had to pay out £5,472m. in 1975-76 (at 1976 prices). If we use the "new definition", this only shows up as £1,128m.! The effect of this change is to deceive the public into thinking they are paying less in interest than they really are.

Interest is a burden on the community, however it is paid for. Without it we could spend more on actual services like education and health. By adopting this "new definition", the Government is in effect trying to cook the books and mislead the public.

Council lunacy

LAMBETH Council in London want to knock down a row of 49 houses in St. Agnes Place, Lambeth, in order to link up two small parks to make one large "open space"

This sounds fair enough until you consider the facts:

- Local people would prefer local parks.
- There is little hope of being able to lay out a park until the 1980s.
- There is no guarantee of being able to close the road between the two small parks to grass the area over.
- No survey has been undertaken by the Council to examine the possibility of renovating the houses.

for out of taxes, but for the interest charges we pay for with high council rents.

Under the usual definition of debt interest, the public sector had to pay out £5,472m. in 1975-76 (at 1976 prices). If we use the "new definition", this only shows up as £1,128m.! The effect of this change is to deceive the public into thinking they are paying less in interest than they really are.

Government backs down

BRITAIN FIRST will not now be prosecuted under the Race Relations Act. Scotland Yard's A7 Community Relations 'Thought Police' have informed us that the Attorney-General, Labour Zionist Sam Silkin, has decided not to consent to a prosecution for 'incitement to racial hatred' under Section 6 of the Race Relations Act 1965.

The police were pursuing enquiries concerning an article in issue No. 38 by Steve Brady, entitled Black Rape Terror Strikes Again, following a complaint from the pro-immigration Runnymede Trust.

It is thought that the Government may have been reluctant to make a test case out of the article, because of its subject matter.

Under the new 1976 Race Relations Act the Attorney-General's consent is also necessary for any prosecution for racial incitement. Following the recent Court of Appeal decision in the case brought against the Union of Postal Workers, however, it is now possible that a judge might be willing to issue an injunction declaring that an article or speech is in breach of the Act.

WE PAY, THEY PROFIT

GOVERNMENT money is being used to help foreign companies consolidate their position in Britain. In January we had the Government giving the American company, Hoover, £13m. to open a factory in Merthyr Tydfil. Over the past year Regional Development Grants have been given to American firms Monsanto, Alcoa, Occidental and Ford.

It is totally commendable that we should be encouraging factories to open in areas of high unemployment, but these should be British factories. American multinationals are notorious for shifting their operations from one country to another, and the effects of closures on the development areas could be disastrous.

British industry is already dominated too much by foreign companies. We should certainly not be financing foreign expansion with Government money.

CAMBRIDGE University froze the assets of its African Society following claims of racial discrimination against Whites. Three Whites were sacked from the Society's executive which is now all-Black.

ANGLO-SOVIET trade increased by nearly 46% in 1976.

MORE AID FOR INDIA

BRITAIN is to give over £112m to the Indian Government under an agreement signed on the 27th of January. India is the largest recipient of British foreign aid.

BANKERS KNOCK BRITISH TEXTILE WORKERS

THE Government has guaranteed a £2 million line of credit which Morgan Grenfell acting on behalf of the Bank of Scotland (35% owned by Barclays) has made available to Kenya. It will help finance the purchase of capital goods including textile machinery. This latest transaction provides yet another example of how private bankers aid foreigners at the expense of British workers.

NO LIMIT TO IMMIGRANT DEPENDANTS

THE Government has rejected the idea of a register of dependants of Immigrants on the grounds that it is impractical and undesirable. It is 'impractical' because no limit can be placed on the dependants of Immigrants already here, and it is 'undesirable' because the Labour Government intends to maintain a complete open door policy.

TRICENTROL, the British oil and gas exploration company which employs over 2000 people, has placed a limit of 10% on foreign ownership of its shares. It's a pity more companies don't follow suit.

Council lunacy

LAMBETH Council in London want to knock down a row of 49 houses in St. Agnes Place, Lambeth, in order to link up two small parks to make one large "open space".

This sounds fair enough until you consider the facts:

- Local people would prefer local parks.
- There is little hope of being able to lay out a park until the 1980s.
- There is no guarantee of being able to close the road between the two small parks to grass the area over.
- No survey has been undertaken by the Council to examine the possibility of renovating the houses.
- The houses could rehouse 73 of the 17,600 families on the Council's waiting list.
- The Council claim that the properties are in poor condition, but local residents say that the Council told them not to repair their homes years ago!
- As if to sum up the whole situation, Lambeth Council is controlled by the Labour Party!

YOUTH SHOWS THE WAY

A COMMUNITY Relations Commission Survey by Alan Little and David Kohler just published in the sociological magazine, New Society, concludes that 'race relations' in Britain are getting better.

This is quite opposite to a Social Science Research Council survey by Alan Marsh which was published in last September's issue of New Society.

Marsh found that the greatest animosity to Coloured Immigrants was amongst young people who went to school with them and had to work with them.

Marsh was particularly worried that "young working-class men are four times as likely to be hostile than young middle-class. And this is the group which is most in contact with the Blacks."

Race mixing has been promoted by internationalists in order to break down national barriers. Some have been naive middle-class liberals who think that the reduction of Mankind to an identity-less, root-less, coffee-coloured mass would somehow bring greater happiness. Others have belonged to a certain group of 'minority racists' who see in the creation of a multiracial society not only a cover to hide their own alien loyalties, but a realisation of a peculiar messianic belief that they are chosen to lead the World into an era of international brotherhood.

These race mixers thought that they could destroy national feeling and pride by pushing internationalist propaganda in the classroom and by forcing racial integration on working people through a whole complex of laws and organisations, now commonly referred to as the 'Race Relations Industry'.

Some of these race-mixers would like to believe — or, perhaps more accurately, they would like us to believe — that they have succeeded. Others will admit regret that they have simply recruited a whole new generation for the Nationalist cause!

OVER 300 Birmingham postmen told their Union to get rid of Peter Hain, the Young Liberal anti-Apartheid campaigner, whom they blamed for the abortive postal boycott against South Africa.

In a petition to Tom Jackson, the General Secretary of the Union of Post Office Workers, they said that the boycott had "a direct connection with the recent appointment of Mr. Hain as a research assistant with the Union of Post Office Workers."

The petition demanded that members should be consulted before decisions are taken on controversial subjects, that the Union should leave international politics alone and concentrate on improving conditions of members, and that Hain should be got rid of for being "trouble".

Nearly 400 postal workers in the London Western Central District Office also signed a petition deploring Tom Jackson for taking action to support the boycott without consulting members. The petition was organised by National Party Trade Unionists and was presented to the local branch secretary of the UPW's No. 1 Branch.

SPECIAL FEATURE

Labour's plans for workers' participation:

INDUSTRIAL DEMOCRACY OR THE CORPORATE STATE?

WORKERS' PARTICIPATION offers a unique opportunity to end the historic struggle between Capital and Labour and unite the British national community in a common interest, purpose and effort.

The Labour Government's Bullock Committee proposals, however, are largely irrelevant to real workers' participation. Far from being a step towards industrial democracy, they are a step towards a 'Fascist-style Corporate State' in which Big Business entrepreneurs and undemocratic Trade Union bosses get together to fix wages and prices and thereby determine workers' living standards.

Bullock himself is connected with the Aspen Institute, the Royal Institute of International Affairs, and is a director of The Observer. Bullock is an 'Insider' of the ruling Establishment, which seeks to bring together top international Capitalists, Communist tyrants and academics, to form an internationalist World Government.

It is not surprising that coming from such a stable, Bullock should want to apply similar thinking to industrial relations.

Bullock proposes that in firms employing more than 2,000, the Trade Unions would have the right to equal boardroom representation divergence and conflict between Capital and Labour.

If the workers were to become the owners under a fully co-operative system, then there would be no conflict at all, but individual co-operatives would compete with one another, and society would continue to enjoy all the best features of free enterprise.

WORLDWIDE CORPORATE STATE

The Capitalist West and the Communist East are at the moment both developing into a worldwide Corporate State, in which Capitalists and 'Leftwing Socialists' and Communists, co-operate together to rule the 'proletarianised' masses.

The Communist system in Eastern Europe has no more to do with workers' control than does Western Capitalism. In fact, the 'State Socialism' of Eastern Europe (better described as 'State Capitalism') is the highest developed form of Monopoly Capitalism, and it is adequately supported and sustained by Western Monopoly Capitalists!

This process can be stopped, but only by broadening the base of economic and political power. Steps towards genuine workers' ownership and control are not steps towards what is termed communism, but steps away from it.

The alternative is a new dark age, for unless the process is stopped the World will sink into a kind of 'neo-Feudalism' as predicted by George Orwell in Nineteen Eighty-Four, from which there will never be any escape.

Bullock is an 'Insider' of the ruling Establishment, which seeks to bring together top international Capitalists, Communist tyrants and academics, to form an internationalist World Government.

It is not surprising that coming from such a stable, Bullock should want to apply similar thinking to industrial relations.

Bullock proposes that in firms employing more than 2,000, the Trade Unions would have the right to equal boardroom representation with shareholders. There would also be a third group of outside directors, to be jointly agreed upon by the other two groups.

What effective say will ordinary workers have when their representatives are elected through the notoriously undemocratic and Communist-dominated Trade Union machinery, and when firms are so large that boardrooms cannot possibly be responsive to the needs of workers in individual plants?

What the proposals really amount to is the absorption of the upper echelons of the Trade Union bureaucracy into the Monopoly Capitalist system. One can just imagine Communist bosses getting together with employers to favour foreign Immigrant labour at the expense of native White British workers. Ordinary workers will be just as isolated from the decision making process as they are at the moment.

Even if the proposals did work, Big Business and Big Unions could get together to exploit a monopoly situation at the expense of other groups of workers and the consumer.

What is the alternative?

The first step is to break up the monopolies, so that firms are small enough to be responsive to workers' participation, which can only be effectively exercised on a plant level.

Secondly, control must not be divorced from ownership. If workers are to play a responsible role in the direction of industry then they ought to have a corresponding share in ownership.

and 'Leftwing Socialists' and Communists, co-operate together to rule the 'proletarianised' masses.

The Communist system in Eastern Europe has no more to do the world will sink into a kind of 'neo-Feudalism' as predicted by George Orwell in Nineteen Eighty-Four, from which there will never be any escape.

Break up the Monopolies!

BETWEEN the early 20s and late 40s the 100 largest firms in Britain accounted for between 22% and 24% of manufacturing output. By 1953 this had crept up to 27%, and by 1970 to over 40%.

Today they probably account for half, while financial institutions own about 55% of all UK companies quoted on the Stock Exchange. By 1984 they are expected to own two-thirds of British industry.

Most Establishment economists have tried to justify this increasing concentration because of what they call 'economies of scale'. They argue that larger plants are needed to take advantage of modern mass-production techniques.

The importance of this argument has been vastly overestimated, for while fewer firms own more plants the actual size of the plants has not increased.

Professor S. J. Prais in The Evolution of Giant Firms in Britain (Cambridge £8.80) shows that the manufacturing sector's 100 largest plants accounted for 11% of output in 1930 and still 11% in 1968! The average plant owned by the largest companies employs only 450 people.

The concentration of ownership has not been the result of organic growth but of the financial system, whereby high taxation has prevented firms from financing their own development, thus leaving the way clear for bankers and Stock Exchange speculators who prefer to invest in larger firms.

Between 1957 and 1967 almost 40% of all companies quoted on the Stock Exchange were taken over by other quoted companies.

Any plans for industrial democracy must be considered against the whole background of the structure and ownership of industry. There can be no effective workers' participation until the monopolies are broken up by law.

Consideration should also be given to rooting out financial speculators through the abolition of the Stock Exchange, and the replacement of the joint stock limited liability company, by private companies, partnerships and co-operatives.

The growing level of taxation and the growing power of the banks which have both been crucial factors in the drive to monopoly, are not unconnected. With the present monetary system whereby all credit is created by the banks and lent out at interest, the banks have been able to amass a fantastic concentration of economic power, and governments have pushed up taxes to pay their own tribute to them.

The banking system must be reformed and taxation reduced. Productive industry must not be crippled in order to subsidise parasitical financiers and a growing mass of totally unproductive bureaucrats.

"Soviet Union has military supremacy" warn defence experts

GENERAL George Keegan, who recently retired as the United States Chief of Air Force Intelligence, says that the Soviet Union already has superiority over the US and is working on weapons which are way ahead.

Mr. Malcolm Currie who has just resigned as the Pentagon's top research official warned the US Congress in his final report that: "The USSR is seizing a new initiative, and creating the prospect of a new dimension of military conflict — war in space."

Two members of the US Senate Armed Services Committee have produced a report stating that the Warsaw Pact is now so powerful that it could launch an attack without first mobilising its reserves, and overrun West Germany before NATO reinforcements could arrive.

General Close, a Belgian senior NATO commander, says in a book soon to be published that the Soviet Union could take West Germany in 48 hours.

The reaction of America's political Establishment has been entirely predictable. Detente advocate Dr. Henry Kissinger has denied that the Soviet Union has superiority, and has argued that in any case the term "supremacy" has "practically no operational significance."

President Carter has responded by nominating two more 'doves' to his Administration. Paul Warnke is to head the US Arms Control and Disarmament Agency. He is opposed to the cruise missile and has advocated deliberate "restraint" in developing new weapons in the hope that the Soviet Union will follow suit!

Admiral Stansfield Turner is to replace Theodore Sorensen as Director of Central Intelligence, following Sorensen's decision to withdraw rather than have to face defending his nomination. Turner recently wrote an article in the Foreign Affairs quarterly which played down the strength of Soviet naval forces.

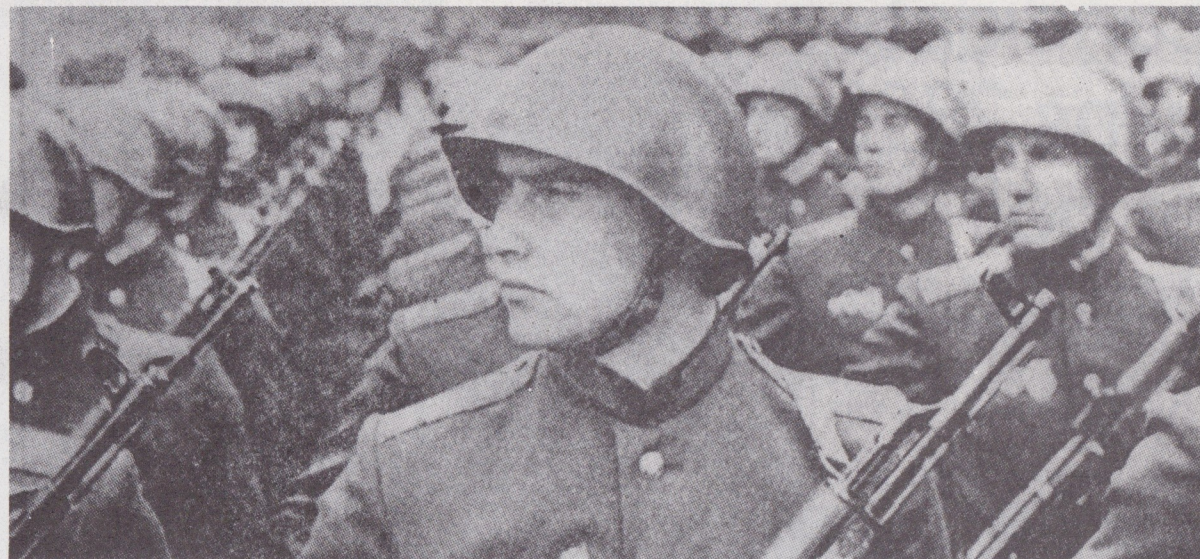

No such attitudes influence the Soviet Union, which is now spending more on military research and development than is being spent by the whole of the Western world.

Soviet forces are being trained for a surprise attack. The Soviet Union has 15,000 military aircraft and is building 1,500 combat aircraft every year. It also has a massive airborne assault force with more than 1,000 heavy lift helicopters and transport planes.

Britain's position is particularly vulnerable and has not been helped by the latest round of defence cuts announced by "ex-Communist" Denis Healey in his latest mini-budget. The budget did nothing to tackle our economic problems, but it did lop another £300 million off defence spending.

Because of the cuts we now have the farcical situation where the Royal Navy will have to go slow to save money on fuel. Vital training

According to the latest edition of the authoritative Jane's Weapon Systems the Soviet submarine menace "is incomparably the greater" when compared to the threat posed to Britain by German U-boats in the last war.

An article by Capt. G. R. Villar, former director of British Naval Intelligence, concludes: "There has been a curious reluctance in the West to deal with this threat until very recently."

Far from building up British armed strength, Government defence research scientists are actually going to help the Soviets to utilise British technology to improve the USSR's most advanced nuclear bomber — the Backfire. The deal is being financed under the credit package arranged with the Soviet Union by Sir Harold Wilson.

FRENCH NOVEL COMES TRUE

IN July of last year Britain First carried a review of The Camp of the Saints by Jean Raspail, which tells the story of a million starving Indians who board ship and sail West: "France, terminally sick with liberalism, falls to their unarmed invasion."

The frightening apocalyptic vision dreamed up by Jean Raspail is already coming true. Two ships crammed with refugees from Vietnam and Cambodia are sailing through the South China Sea towards Australia.

The invasion is being financed by a church organisation called the World Conference on Peace and Religion. Will Australia allow this 'passive' invasion? Has the White-man still got the will to survive?

SEVEN White Roman Catholic missionaries in Rhodesia were gunned down by Black terrorists who made a special point of rounding up Europeans.

The massacre, which took place on the 6th of February, was the second of its kind involving missionaries. Three other missionaries were killed last December.

It is ironic that the Roman Catholic Church in Rhodesia has out first mobilising its reserves, and overrun West Germany before NATO reinforcements could arrive.

General Close, a Belgian senior NATO commander, says in a book soon to be published that the Soviet Union could take West Germany in 48 hours.

The reaction of America's political Establishment has been entirely predictable. Detente advocate Dr. Henry Kissinger has denied that the Soviet Union has superiority, and has argued that in any case the term "supremacy" has "practically no operational significance."

US WHITES WANT DEATH PENALTY

SEVENTY-TWO per cent of American Whites support the death penalty, but amongst Blacks a majority oppose it.

Of the 350 or so prisoners under sentence of death in the United States, the vast majority are Blacks, and it is argued that the death penalty discriminates against the Black community!

A campaign to oppose capital punishment is being led by the National Association for the Advancement of Coloured People.

The only place where the NAACP doesn't support the advancement of Negroes is in its own leadership which is dominated by another minority group of lighter hue.

US AMBASSADOR BACKS REDS

MR. ANDREW YOUNG, America's Black Ambassador to the United Nations, pledged support in Nairobi for the Black Rhodesian terrorists of the so-called 'Patriotic Front'.

The 'Front' is receiving Soviet and Cuban assistance, and is armed with Soviet and Chinese weapons.

When asked about the Cuban presence in Angola in a television interview Young stated: "There's a sense in which the Cubans bring a certain stability and order to Angola."

No such attitudes influence the Soviet Union, which is now spending more on military research and development than is being spent by the whole of the Western world.

Soviet forces are being trained for a surprise attack. The Soviet Union has 15,000 military aircraft and is building 1,500 combat aircraft every year. It also has a massive airborne assault force with more than 1,000 heavy lift helicopters and transport planes.

Britain's position is particularly vulnerable and has not been helped by the latest round of defence cuts announced by "ex-Communist" Denis Healey in his latest mini-budget. The budget did nothing to tackle our economic problems, but it did lop another £300 million off defence spending.

Because of the cuts we now have the farcical situation where the Royal Navy will have to go slow to save money on fuel. Vital training

Ah, so ...

THE Labour Government has refused to let the Nationalist Chinese of Taiwan buy a considerable number of Rapier surface-to-air missiles from the British Aircraft Corporation.

One reason behind this reluctance to sell an exclusively defensive weapon is that the BAC is trying to persuade Communist China to take up options on Concorde.

A second, more important, reason is that our political 'leaders' do not wish to offend the Communist Government in Peking at a time when behind the scenes activity is going on to get agreement to the 1972 Shanghai Communiqué.

This Communiqué effectively completes the ditching of the Nationalist Chinese in favour of the Communist regime, so it will come as no surprise to learn that the signature of Dr. Henry Kissinger is on it.

It is expected that the new American President, Carter, will soon be getting his orders to carry through the terms of the sellout, and so undoubtedly James Callaghan has already been told not to rock the boat by setting out the

According to the latest edition of the authoritative Jane's Weapon Systems the Soviet submarine menace "is incomparably the greater" when compared to the threat posed to Britain by German U-boats in the last war.

An article by Capt. G. R. Villar, former director of British Naval Intelligence, concludes: "There has been a curious reluctance in the West to deal with this threat until very recently."

Far from building up British armed strength, Government defence research scientists are actually going to help the Soviets to utilise British technology to improve the USSR's most advanced nuclear bomber — the Backfire. The deal is being financed under the credit package arranged with the Soviet Union by Sir Harold Wilson.

NF concocts a smear

THE above photograph must represent an all-time low in the activities of the National Front's dirty tricks department run by Martin Webster and Richard Verrall.

It is one of a number of photos distributed to the Establishment press, some of which show youths undergoing paramilitary training with rifles. The youths are pictured wearing T-shirts of the National Party of the United Kingdom, and of the French Parti des Forces Nouvelles.

At least two of the youths in the pictures, however, have been positively identified as members of the French National Front — a rival party to the French PFN. The youths established a close relationship with Richard Verrall last summer.

This elaborate hoax using foreign contacts shows that the National Front leadership is seriously concerned by the progress of the NP, and will stoop to any depths to smear other Nationalists.

Fake letters have been written to papers like the Hackney Gazette using Jewish names and smearing the NP as "neo-Nazi"; a fake letter complaining about the NP was concocted and sent to Croydon Councillors; and at least one pro-Zionist muckraker was taken out to dinner and fed all sorts of stories including an allegation of links between the NP and a group called Column 88.

When Martin Webster also has to spend so much time camping up 'Search-light-style' exposes of the NP for his column in Spearhead, it is little wonder that the NF's newspaper appears so irregularly...

NF members would do well to leave Martin Webster to his fairy tales, and join a party which deals in facts.

Council candidate wins 28% of poll

- HIGHEST EVER BRITISH NATIONALIST VOTE IN LONDON
- NEARLY 400 VOTERS 'DECLARE WAR' ON THE MUGGERS
- DISILLUSION WITH LABOUR IS GROWING

NATIONAL PARTY candidate Ron Jackson won 28% of the vote in a council by-election held on the 20th of January for the Burgess Ward of Southwark Council. This is the highest vote ever achieved by a British Nationalist candidate in London.

DECLARATION OF WAR

Ron's election address attacked the Labour Party for betraying the interests of local working people and their families. It said that a vote for the National Party would be a declaration of war on the muggers:

"End the muggers' nightmare reign of terror in Peckham now. Don't let the Labour Party play it down just because Blacks are involved."

Ron's campaign also dealt with bringing back industry and employment to the area, improving standards in education, keeping rents and rates down, and making homes available for Britons.

IN THE YEAR SINCE OUR INAUGURAL CONFERENCE IN 1976 THE NATIONAL PARTY HAS ACHIEVED RESULTS WHICH NATIONALISTS COULD ONLY DREAM OF BEFORE ITS FORMATION.

Our success in this past year has been due to a radical approach which has undermined the Labour Party and built a base amongst the ordinary British working people of the depressed and neglected inner-urban areas, who bear the brunt of the Establishment's political, economic and social policies, in the form of immigration, unemployment and bad housing.

Our most successful Branches have been those which have worked hard to involve themselves in the problems of local communities, have made a deliberate appeal to youth, and have tried to build a positive patriotic attitude based on the restoration of pride in the achievements of our Nation and Race.

The votes achieved by our Blackburn and Lewisham and Southwark Branches have been fantastic: two councillors elected in Blackburn, and the highest vote ever achieved in Blackburn, and the highest vote ever achieved in Lewisham.

As we develop and recruit new people the role of internal education will become more and more important. We must beware of people who come into the NP from Establishment parties, know nothing and read nothing about Nationalist politics, but always have a lot to say.

We must ensure that all new members are politically educated, so that fundamental and long-established Nationalist principles such as our anti-Common Market stand, our belief in the compulsory repatriation of all Coloured Immigrants, and our financial policies, are not brought into question, attacked or watered down by the politically ignorant. That is the price we must pay for maintaining a democratic party.

We must also prevent the emergence of apathy, a mental disease now endemic in the British population at large. This has always been a problem in Nationalist politics because of the psychological exhaustion involved in confronting seemingly insurmountable odds.

Some people dropped out altogether causing a high turnover of membership. Others merely became disillusioned and formed themselves into an anarchist fringe of malcontents, who moan, carp and whine against anybody who holds a position of authority.

The second of these two groups was by far the greatest menace, especially in the old NF which trudged on year after year, only achieving miserable results of a few per cent.

With the National Party things can be different. We've shown we can win. Now that really impressive gains are within our grasp, we must not allow apathy to defeat us.

IF WE CAN HOLD ON, IF WE CAN JUST GO ON FIGHTING, THEN THERE IS NOTHING WE CANNOT ACHIEVE!

YOUR QUESTIONS ANSWERED

Q. What is your policy towards racial half-castes? Would they take the nationality of their father?

A. Our policy towards half-castes is already defined in our Statement of Principles and is quite specific. It is our intention not only to repatriate or resettle abroad all Coloured Immigrants but also their descendants. As all half-castes are the descendants of Coloured Immigrants they would naturally be deported as well.

The votes achieved by our Blackburn and Lewisham and Southwark Branches have been fantastic: two councillors elected in Blackburn, and the highest vote ever achieved by a Nationalist candidate in London.

By the careful selection of areas in which to stand, and by proper concentration on those areas, these Branches have achieved credible results which can then be used as a springboard elsewhere.

We don't have to convert people to Nationalism, but we do have to convince them that they are not wasting their votes, and we will never do this by putting up everywhere and thus diluting our strength.

The Labour Party is now so frightened that it has suddenly decided to concern itself with 'urban decay'. The Labour Party, however, does not intend to repatriate all Coloured Immigrants! Nor does it intend to renovate and rebuild inner-urban areas while maintaining street life and community feeling.

Labour's plan is to break up local communities and rehouse them in new 'stack-a-prole' slums, where a general feeling of disorientation can be exploited in order to foist multi-racialism on them.

While our approach to the general public has brought impres-
